The government already evacuating Nanking, the capital. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces were striving frantically to hold Soochow, pivotal point of the main Chinese defense line, against 250,000 Japanese stretched across a 110-mile front 50 miles west of Shanghai.

Thousands Flee.

Terrified Chinese were fleeing by thousands from the path of two Japanese armies—one striking west from Shanghai in a drive on Nanking, the other closing in on Tsinanfu, capital of Shantung province in North China.

If the Japanese penetrate the powerful "Hindenburg line" an-chored on Soochow, Changshu and Kashing, the Chinese were expect-ed to fall back to new positions stretching from Kiangyin, on the Yangtze river, to Wusih, 100 miles

Central government civil ministries were to be dispersed among several cities with Hankow, on the Yangtze river 300 miles west of Shanghai, as the main haven. The ministry of communications began evacuating staff and records to a Hankow-bound steamer. The min-istry of foreign affairs and finance also was to go there.

The United States and foreign embassies arranged the evacuation of their nationals but were confronted with an acute transporta-Continued in Page 9, Column 2.

Please

That familiar old phrase, "we aim to please" has had a lot of fun poked at it. But that desire to please is one of the greatest assets an individual or a business concern can have. In an individual, that desire makes a buyer out of a salesperson, an executive out of a buyer. In a business concern it makes a store out of a shop and a large store out of a small one. In Davison's case it has made Atlanta's largest and finest department store out of a small frame building opened for the first time nearly a half a century ago.

This desire to please is today taxing the capacity of our large, new building completed only ten years ago . . . at which time it was large enough to do practically all of the department store business in the whole of Atlanta.

Circus Bears Fight To Death in a Cage

PERU, Ind., Nov. 16.—(P)—A brown bear and a Siberian bear, weighing together approximate-ly 1,000 pounds, fought furiously to their death in a cage at the winter quarters of the Hagen-beck-Wallace circus yesterday.

Terrell Jacobs, wild animal trainer, told today of the struggle, describing it as the most vicious animal fight he ever saw. The bears defied all efforts of Jacobs and a dozen attendants, using steel rods and "blank" guns, to separate them, the trainer said.

The struggle continued until each bear had inflicted fatal wounds on the other.

Methodist policy provides em-ployment for all ministers in good standing and good health, who desire work. Also the church's policy is to provide pastoral leadership for each church that pledges support. By this process no Meth-odist minister is without a church, and no Methodist church s without a pastor. By this system the greatest degree of satisfaction is said to be derived, and pastors are changed without fric-tion or loss of time, and pastoral oversight is provided for churches without interruption. WATCHMAN FREED

Malone Denies Knowledge of Mrs. Laurine Kelly's Slaying.

Walter Malone, WPA night watchman, held since Monday by county police on suspicion of murder, was ordered released yesterday after special investigators of the solicitor general's office had checked his statements.

Malone was arrested in connection with the death of Mrs. Laurine Kelley, 42, of 240 Luckie street, who was found dead in a ditch off Simpson road Sunday morning. A coroner's jury said she died of causes unknown.

In his statement to the special investigators, Malone admitted drinking with Mrs. Kelley Saturday night but said he left her about 6:30 o'clock to go home to sleep. He said he slept until 10 o'clock and at 10:30 o'clock took a street car to work, going on the job at 12 midnight. His son, Bar-ron, was with him, he said. Malone denied knowing anything about Mrs. Kelley's movements after 6:30 o'clock Saturday night.

The transfer, to Mrs. Robert Young "and others" took place September 13, Kolbe said. Mrs. Young, the former Anita O'Keefe, of Virginia, is the wife of Robert R. Young, who with Kolbe and Allan P. Kirby, bought the controlling interest in Alleghany Corporation, the top holding company of the Van Sweringen set-up.

Business reasons and disagree-ment with his associates over terms of the proposed merger of Alleghany Corporation with Chesapeake Corporation, a subsidiary, were reported to have motivated Kolbe in disposing of his syndicate holdings. He retained other Alleghany securities, however, and said he would continue on the boards of both corporations.

Could Not Have Received 'Secret Funds.'

PARIS, Nov. 16. - (A) - The PARIS, Nov. 16. — (A) — The names of nearly every prominent French politician of the past decade, headed by Premier Camille Chautemps, today figured in sensational testimony at the trial of 15 slander actions brought by Colonel Francois de la Rocque, rightist leader.

The actions were against persons who had charged de la Rocque had received government "secret funds."

A crowded courtroom heard Rightist Deputy Henry de Ker-illis assertedly quote a charge that Chautemps was involved in the "assassination" in 1934 of Magistrate Albert Prince. Prince was "the man who knew all" in the Stavisky scandals, which started with the discovery of fraud in the floating of municipal pawnshop bonds and brought on charges of political corruntion that led to the political corruption that led to the downfall of Premier Edouard Daladier's cabinet and the riots of February, 1934.

Judge Prince was found dead on the eve of his appearance in the investigation of the famed "Stav-isky Scandals," and the mystery of his death never has been solv-ed. It was reported his testimony would have incriminated several high French officials. high French officials.

Basque Deputy Jean Ybarne-garay testified that former pre-mier Pierre Laval had told him he had received de la Rocque only once and therefore could not have given the rightist leader secret funds. The trial was adjourned until ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 17, 1937.

THE HEALTH OF THE COMMUNITY.

Recommendation by Dr. Charles F. Blankenship, assistant surgeon of the United States Health Service, that the health departments of Atlanta and Fulton county be consolidated will be generally approved.

Dr. Blankenship recently concluded a health survey of the city and county and finds that the proposed merger would not only eliminate duplication of effort and reduce administrative cost, but would promote better health condi-

There is no service of government more vital to the well-being of the public than that of public health. Most evils in the structure of society are traceable, either wholly or in part, to physical ills. Sickness not only robs the individual of his capacity to work and support himself and his dependents, it destroys mental and moral stamina and is the primary cause of a large proportion of crime.

Dr. Blankenship severely criticizes the health programs and efficiency of the city and county health departments as now constituted and described their combined efforts for the control of communicable disease as "antiquated, disorganized and very poorly directed."

In modern life it is impossible to segregate the well from the diseased. Human contacts are, inevitably, frequent and close. While the domestic servants who enter the homes, the employes who handle the food, the clerks in the stores and the workers in the offices are open to infection, there is no immunity for anyone.

Proper control of communicable disease would tremendously advance the moral, physical and financial well-being of every resident of the city and county.

There is one phase in Dr. Blankenship's recommendations especially appealing to the average citizen. The merged board of health he proposes should be, he says, "entirely free of political influence."

The touch of politics on any activity that affects the health and life of the people becomes odious and criminal. It should be made impossible.

THE PROFESSOR AND E. S. P.

There is a professor at Duke University, Dr. J. B. Rhine, who has been making tests for seven years on those mysterious functions of the human mind called clairvoyance or telepathy. Dr. Rhine calls the, at present, inexplicable facts he has uncovered, "extra sensory perception," or E. S. P. He has told all about his tests in a recently published book, "New Frontiers of the Mind."

It is the professor's theory that there are certain people who possess a mental faculty which permits them, to a certain extent, to read the minds of others. In one of his tests he has one person look at the faces of a deck of cards while a second person, who does not see the cards, attempts to identify them one by one, as they are turned. These tests have been conducted in many ways, sometimes with the two persons involved in separate rooms, in separate buildings or even as much as 250 miles apart.

A special set of 25 cards, divided into groups of five, each group carrying a different symbol, has been devised by Dr. Rhine for his tests. He states that, out of tens of thousands of individuals tested, a small percentage revealed an unusual card-calling ability, which is what he labels "E. S. P."

Under the laws of chance, Dr. Rhine says, a person would average calling five cards out of the 25 correctly. Some people, however, have averaged from 8 to 12 correct, keeping up this average through thousands of calls, month in and month out. One student, who said his mother had been "psychic" and who believed he had innerited the same ability, always maintained an average of better than 10 correct calls out of the 25 and, on one occasion, under exceptionally favorable circumstances, called all 25 correctly. The mathematical odds against this feat, according to the proper laws of chance, is 298,023,223,-876.953,125 to 1, says Dr. Rhine.

"With such odds," he argues, "it is impossible to explain away the phenomena by calling it 'chance,' or 'coincidence.' "

There are vast, uncharted regions of the mind which some day may be explored by scientific man. Discoveries that may entirely change man's conception of himself and the universe may result. Dr. Rhine has taken the first, halting step along this unknown path. Others will, undoubtedly, follow and lead the way to an understanding of mysteries we do not, today, even glimpse.

THE REGENTS AND STATE TAXES

The board of regents of the University System of Georgia have added their voice to the statewide appeal that the legislature, in any revision of Georgia's out-of-date tax system, consider first the removal of injustices which have handicapped industry now in the state and which have reacted to discourage the establishment of new industries in Georgia.

At the same time the regents reiterated approval of the enlarged programs for education, health and social security that have been enacted under the Rivers administration and declared that these humanitarian and progressive activities of the state government must be continued.

Georgia, it is admitted by all students of economics, is seriously handicapped by the inefficiency of her tax system. The ad valorem method of property assessment was workable and fair when it was first adopted. At that time there was little property other than real estate in a state overwhelmingly agricultural in its interests.

Today, however, the picture has changed. There has been a tremendous increase in industry within the state borders and many citizens now count their possessions in intangible properties, such as stocks, bonds and bank balances.

To tax such properties on the same valuations as real estate is manifestly unfair. It amounts, in most instances, to practical confiscation. On the other hand, to permit real estate to carry the entire burden is equally unreasonable.

The time has come when it is vitally necessary for a system to be evolved that will divide the cost of supporting the state government equitably between all types of property owners and all classes of citizens.

If that is done, industry and private capital will not hesitate to come to Georgia. There will be a recrudescence of industrial growth and a renewal of prosperity that will assure Georgia's continuance as "The Empire State of the

The state government, with the mandate of the people, has launched a program of increased educational opportunities for Georgia's youth, of better health conditions for all her people and of greater security for her aged, her crippled children and her otherwise handicapped.

The people of the state recognize that upon these programs depends the future welfare of

The fingerprinting of all prisoners in Georgia, now undertaken by the State Department of Public Safety, is a practice which should have been in operation many years ago. Now that it has been begun, it can only be accepted on the proverbial basis of "better late than Without fingerprints it is practically impossible to keep a reliable record on any criminal. This system is the only one known which provides irrefutable proof of identity. Without a record of each individual's prints there is no positive means of checking against the criminal records kept by other states and by the federal government. With such a record it is a simple matter to discover the past criminal history, if any, of every man and woman convicted in Georgia for violations of the law.

The Federal Bureau of Identification, with the co-operation of police departments all over the nation, has classified millions of fingerprints and keeps these files, ready for instant reference, in Washington, Georgia, by referring prints of state convicts to Washington, can discover the previous record of every prisoner in the state.

Undoubtedly, there are many convicts in the state prisons who have records in other parts of the country. These past records are essential if the convict is to be treated in manner just not only to himself but to society.

It is absurd to release a hardened criminal on parole, for instance, when his own word is the only assurance the parole board has that he is not a habitual offender.

Inauguration of the fingerprinting system on state-wide basis should lessen the chances for abuse of the parole system and should reduce the crime record of the state in considerable degree.

The sea is no place for divided authority. When a man puts foot on the deck of a ship, he becomes part of a disciplined organism subject to the navigation laws of the United States. Seamen must recognize that the nature of their calling, which gives them a unique status under the law, also imposes upon them obligations not common to shore occupations.

It is a situation which the commission is pealing to congress to help remedy by legislation applying railroad labor rules to ship workers, and which must be remedied or there soon will be no American merchant marine worthy of the name, and no carriers flying the American flag to fall

Boorsma disdained tactics of sportsmanship. Twice he tried to foul Gil, but the younger man evaded him with quick sidesteps and countered with slashing blovs to the face.

They fought back and forth across the room, seattering furniture, making a shambles of the place. Boorsma seized a small chair and launched it at Gil's head, but Gil ducked beneath it and came up with a blow that sunh lis flist inches into Boorsma's paunch.

Through it all Gil's thoughts were caim, cool. "I mustin' let him get near me. If he ever gets those arms around me he'll crush me to death. He's weak in the mid-section. Hit him there, keep hitting him there."

Twice Boorsma managed to rock Gil with vicious blows to the head but Gil shook off the flood of blackness that threatened and came back with his constant tattoo on the bigger man's midriff.

Boorsma was panting, his face stained with his own blood, his sweat-streaked shirt hanging in ribbons on his big frame. Gil was in little better shape, though his brusted lips smiled cruelly as he saw Boorsma stager under the test of blows.

A strange sight outside some English theaters is a double line of chairs or camp stools. Half an hour or so before the play starts, the chairs begin to fill up. which the play was given. Nowadays the pit contains front-row seats, but it still has the old name, and the seats do not cost so much as some others in the theater.

The highest charge is for boxes. Patrons sometimes pay as much as five pounds ($25) for a box seat. The cheapest seats are in the galleries, and those are the ones people buy chairs to wait for.

The question comes, "Why don't they stand up and wait in line?"

There are two answers. It is more comfortable to have a seat, and a person can make sure he will be near the head of the line if he buys a chair in advance. His place will be kept for him until about 15 minutes before the play starts. He does not have to wait too have to wait for hours to make sure of obtains.

Bricks and stone are widely used in England for building homes. This helps explain why so many of the houses are very old. They were solidly built in the first place, and they have stood the test of time. Thousands and thousands of English houses date back more than a century, and some are several centuries old.

These "solid" buildings have done much to keep back the march of progress. It is costly to install new and better plumbing, or be ter heating devices.

Moscow Agrees to Plan Granting Belligerent Rights to Both.

LONDON, Nov. 16 .- (A)-Soviet Russia, in an unexpected move, to-night removed a major obstacle to ithdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain. She modified her opposition to granting belligerent rights to the warring Spanish factions and accepted a general plan approved by other non-intervention powers November 4 for withdrawal of for-eign soldiers from the civil war.

With the exception of Russia, the other nations had agreed to extend belligerent rights to the Spanish government and the Insurgents when "substantial progress" had been made in getting alien volunteers out of Spain.

Russia had insisted such rights should not be granted until all volunteers had been withdrawn, thus causing a stalemate.

A trick play-policemen-the recorder's court-

All those were elements of the first football game ever played at Columbus, Ga., where on Saturday afternoon the Bulldogs from Georgia and the Plainsmen from Auburn will meet in their annual game.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 16.—Rain put the damper on Georgia's field operations this afternoon. Coach Mehre utilized the time for a fullmeet in their annual game.

Judge Frank Foley, the tall and learned judge, is still a friend to know in time of stress. He can even help a little if one is in the jug, or calaboose. In 1911 he was the recorder and he simply said, "Not guilty." It happened in this manner-

Georgia and Alabama were to play a game at Columbus. The faithful alumni of both institutions dug up the required guarantee of $400 and the game was on—the first major football game to be played there.

NOW, THE STORY WAS-

Now, the story was this: Earlier in the fall, Alex Cunningham, the Georgia coach, had gone up to Nashville to scout Vanderbilt in a game with the Case School of Applied Science. Those were the days of "trick" plays—such as Pop Warner pulled having the ball placed under the back of an Indian's jersey—and any trick was

Case received the kickoff and lined up with only 10 men on the field. The Vanderbilt players checked the sidelines, as "the sleeper" play was the favorite one of those days. But no Case player was in evidence along the crowd lining the field.

The Commodores gave all their attention to the next play.

IMAGINE THEIR SURPRISE.

Imagine their surprise—and consternation—when the Case halfback dropped back and threw a long pass. A civilian standing on the sideline started running. He caught the pass and ran for a touchdown.

There was nothing in the rules in those happy days saying that all players had to be in uniform. And nothing was said about 11 players being on the field in uniform.

So, the play was entirely legal.

Alex Cunningham thought and thought about it. Alabama was going to be awfully difficult. And it was just possible the play might work for a touchdown. He was still thinking about it when time came for the game at Columbus. He decided to take a chance.

THE CHOICE WAS DIFFICULT. *

The choice was difficult.

At a pre-game meeting the players and their coach discussed just to whom would "be assigned the glory" of making the first touchdown for Georgia against Alabama that day. He would be withdrawn from the game immediately after.

"Hooks" Autrey, a fine boy who since has answered the last call, was the fastest and he was elected.

"Hooks," said Coach Cunningham, "you will have the honor so wear your civilian clothes this afternoon and mingle on the sidelines."

"Coach," he said, "these are the only pants I've got and I've got a date tonight with the prettiest girl in Columbus. just can't afford to get these pants torn up."

But, of course, the allure of a touchdown won and the plan

As last week, the boys were reminded of their mistakes as the pictures were shown. The touch-down run of Vassa Cate drew new praise. Coaches were amazed at his eluding four tacklers on the punt

The Tulane game as other games this season, has shown Georgia's line to be just what Coach Mehre predicted for it, defensively. The invaders last week were all agreed that it was the best from this standpoint they have faced this season. Just how it will stack up against the Auburn wall will be interesting.

Reports from the training table today had Quinton Lumpkin in no condition to play next Saturday. His ankle injured in a scrimmage last Thursday still is a big impediment. In fact, he is not likely to be able to drill at all this week.

Buddy Milner, 155-pounder, who played superbly as a relief man against Tulane, is being groomed to start against Auburn. It was against Auburn two years ago that Milner played a great game for 55 minutes at center.

Others missing today's drill were Andy Roddenberry, who was ab-sent due to a scholastic examination, and Captain Bill Hartman who took a rest due to injuries Incidentally, Hartman will remain at quarterback the rest of the season, Mehre said. Cate was on hand but was in civilian clothes.

If the rainy weather subsides, a scrimmage will be held Wednesday afternoon. The only activity on the field today was about ten minutes of punting and signal

Georgia's Sophomore Backs Are Ready for Auburn

After playing an important part in Georgia's upset of Tulane last Saturday, these three Bulldog sophomores now turn their attention to Auburn. They are, left to right, Vassa Cate, Billy Mims, both halfbacks, and Jimmy Fordham, fullback. Cate scored the touchdown and Mims, an Atlanta boy, kicked the extra point that defeated the Green Wave, 7 to 6, last Saturday. Fordham capably handled the fullback duties in the place of Captain Bill Hartman, who performed at quarterback. Fordham will play the majority of the game with Auburn Saturday at Columbus since Coach Mehre has announced that Hartman will remain at quarterback. He had said only Monday that the Jackets would very likely do little outside of run signals, punt and pass and maybe hit the dum-my for good measure this week. It was a fact, at that, that few regulars were pressed into yester-day's scrimmage. The reserves battled the Bees, for the most part.

There were two stellar performers—George Smith, big end, and George (Scrappy) Edwards, whose twinkling feet covered many a yard up and down Grant field. Smith's defensive play was

There will be some long-distance rooting for the Stanford Indians, of Palo Alto, Cal., Saturday afternoon.

Georgia Tech players practically had given up hope on their post-and of course it won't be. This wouldn't be the first time the west has tried to crack the Big Three agreement against post-sea-son football. It's a matter of record that Princeton was sought more than once in recent years.

And time and again the west has tried to induce the Big Ten to break down its post-season ban. This season, with the prospect of success better than ever before, the Western Conference is without a standout.
The Big Three was represented in 1920 by Harvard, which scored a 7-to-6 victory over Oregon. The Big Ten sent a guest in 1921 when California walked off with a 28-to-0 victory over Ohio State, but massed efforts to break down the barriers in these two conferences in recent years have been in vain. Besides the doubtful Pitt choice, the west still has on the available of him. His favorite trick was to hide out there and take a pass. But, there was the great McWhorter in the lineup and there was no one else in uniform. "Well," they said, "if the Georgia team was so dumb as to play with just 10 men, it suited them all right."

So, all was well. In the crowd at the sideline, and standing just inside the line, was the rather melancholy Hooks. He was still worried about those pants. A suit of clothes was a suit of clothes. And a touchdown just a touchdown.

BACK CAME THE BALL.

Back came the ball. Timon Bowden caught it and threw a long forward pass—50 yards down the field. Out came the young man in his best suit and caught the ball.

The stunned Alabama players started for him. So did some of the Georgia players. Hooks Autrey was running hard, pressing the ball to one vest pocket. He heard the pounding feet. The Georgia boys were between him and Alabama's men.

But to "Hooks" Autrey, who thought they all were Alabama feet, the sound was not so pleasant. He had visions of about three men tackling him from behind and sending him sliding along on that new suit—ripping out the knees—tearing off the buttons—ripping out the elbows—it was an awful thought.

The feet came nearer and nearer. And "Hooks" Autrey, seeing the goal line was near enough anyhow, stopped right then and there to save that suit.

BEDLAM RULED.

Bedlam and pandemonium reigned. The opposing players began to swing and connect. Spectators joined in. The police arrived.

Some of the players were arrested but permitted to play out the game when, at last, peace was restored. The referee, Counselman, of Virginia, checked his rule book. There was no rule against it. The ball was at the 10-yard line. Both coaches agreed it was not a sporting play and agreed to call off the play and take the ball back. But the referee said it had to stay right there. Rules were

So, there it stayed. Fortunately, the aroused Alabama team held and took away the ball.

Swedish Cradle Will Be Used As 'Prop' for 'Rumplestiltskin'

By Sally Forth.

WHEN the Junior Leaguers present the play, "Rumplestiltskin." tomorrow at the Morningside school, they will use at one of the "props" a Swedish cradle that was sent to Mrs. William Beers Jr. on the occasion of the arrival of her young daughter, Marie Haven Beers. The cradle, a gift from a lifelong friend of Mr. Beers, came all the way from Sweden, where it was made especially for little Marie, and it is so colorful and unusual that it makes a splendid "prop"

The cradle is prainted an ivory tone, and it has bright blue rockers with trimming of red and yellow. Printed on the side is the one word, "Daga," which, Sally is reliably informed, means "Baby" in Swedish. The cradle is to be used in the second act of the play where the dwarf, Rumplestiltskin, comes to claim the baby that the miller's daughter has promised him. The story goes that the King heard the miller's daughter could spin straw into gold, so he offers to marry her if she can per-form this feat. She is left over-night with the straw and Rumplestiltskin comes and spins it into gold for her, and in turn exacts the promise that she will give him her first-born child. He comes back three years later and finds the baby in the cradle.

The play also calls for a spin-ning wheel, which fact caused Mrs. Hugh Carter, the property manager, grave concern until she located one at Mrs. Walter Colquitt's. But it is such a price-less relic that Mrs. Carter has to lock it up carefully after each rehearsal. In fact, she watches over it with all the care that such a valuable antique deserves.

CALAMITY is besetting the debutante ranks already in the matter of keeping dates. One of the season's most enthusiastic debs missed one of the loveliest seated parties of the week be-cause no one waked her and "mother had misplaced my date book so I didn't know I had been invited anywhere," as she sadly told the hostess when called, after luncheon, had been waiting so long for her to ar-

WHEN pretty, titian-haired Margueryte Scott becomes the bride of Glascock Reynolds Friday, she will cut a wedding cake that bears a bit of sentiment. The fruit cake was made last week by Mrs. H. Claude Smith, of Augusta, and was brought to Atlanta by train by Mrs. Joseph Reynolds, mother of the groom-elect. Mrs. Smith, who is a gifted cakemaker, made a cake for the former Mary Reynolds, sister of this week's groom-elect, when she became Mrs. Henry Powell Jr., last year. For this marriage in the Reynolds family, Mrs. Smith also asked the honor of making the cake for the young bridal couple.

And anent the Scott-Reynolds wedding on Friday, the brides-maids will wear specially ordered veils as a part of their bridal ensembles. Many guests, too, will wear veils, for in addition to the current fashion, church customs require feminine heads to be cov-ered on such occasions.

Exercise Without Diet, Will Not Give Perfect Figure, Says Miss Kain

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: My husband is not the man he used to be and I know what caused the change. Men friends and the poker game kept him out until all hours of the early morning and nothing I said had any effect on him. He called it nagging but Miss Chatfield, what wife wouldn't nag when she has to stay at home night when she has to stay at home night company. My husband was always good to me, he paid the bills and thought what I did was just about right. Then three years ago this thing reached a climax and he bedidn't care for me and wanted a divorce. It nearly killed me for even while I was saying hard words to him, I knew that he was my very life. He is 40 years old and surely he will regret it if he loses me and his child, though he keeps saying he should never have married. I am an attractive wommarried. I am an attractive woman and a devoted wife to him and I want to hang on to my home for my heart's sake and my baby's sake. This is what my heart tells me to do. Is it the right thing to

Answer: Of course it is the right thing for you to do—to stand by—heartwise and head-wise it is right. If you play your hand well the chances are that your husband will see the folly of his plan and withdraw his request for divorce. Playing your hand well involves more than standing your ground. You must give your husband the distinct impression that you have changed your tactics, that you aren't trying to police him but rather trying to co-operate with him. He doesn't want to break up his home, lose his wife and baby; neither does he want any woman telling him what he can

Instead of raising cain about the poker parties, why not suggest that the game be transferred to your dining room table. If you want to go the second mile you might fill percolator and have the coffee ready to apply the heat, put some midnight food in the refrigerator—killing the fatted calf for the prodigal's return trying to co-operate with him. This will ease the ten-

It isn't hard to understand how a woman loses her head and nags a man for leaving her at home to nurse their baby while he goes out for a good time at her expense as well as his. One can understand too why failing to lure him away from his men friends she resorts to argument and finally to abuse—all in the vain hope of bringing him to see the injustice he's doing her. But what's natural isn't always expedient and here's the case in point.

Instead such tactics make him his wife separated. They were more defiant and more determined to go and stay where he won't be Ethel Mae remained with her he can't take any more.

Without losing a pound of weight you can tighten up the musculature and make your figure slim and youthful.

Some of you do not have to diet, but there is not a woman in the world who can get by without exercise. Only a firm musculature can hold the silhouette to smooth, streamlined curves. It is true that bulges may be the sign of excess weight concentrated in certain areas, but they are just as likely to indicate lazy muscles—lack of

MY DAY

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Monday-Kansas City people have long memories and they welcome with great cordiality, so one cannot help but feel very much at home in their midst. As we walked into the hotel yesterday afternoon, a woman stoppped me and handed me a box. In a hur-ried murmur she said something about my having written her story and that she was happy.

I was swept into the elevator and it was not until we got into our rooms that it dawned on me that she was probably the woman who had telephoned the last time we were here to thank the President for the fact that she had work and could meet her obligations. The cake which she made for me was a delicious one. I regretted there was not some way in which I could share it with my husband.

A trip of this kind brings a number of strange incidents. One, which occurred at breakfast in the station at St. Louis the other 'day, made me realize the most improbable fiction is probably founded on truth. A woman came up to me and said she had written 16 letters to people in the White House and, while she had had answers, none of them brought about the result she desired. Finding herself near me in the station, she took the opportunity to tell me all about the problems of her locality because she said I was a woman and would surely understand. I do understand the difficulty, for it is one of those problems which don't exactly fit into the work of any government agency and there are various interests involved which make the solving of it more difficult. However, she had faith that to tell it to me would at least bring about an impartial investigation of conditions and I sincerely hope that it will.

Another incident concerns a letter delivered to me in a hotel during the past week. It was unsigned and it begged be to praise all those in the country who have found jobs for themselves and stuck to them. Then, rather naively, came the personal touch. I was told there was a young man in my hotel who had done just this and was helping to support a widowed mother and several sisters with his earnings. The letter added: "All the praise he gets is advice to get married." Quite evidently that advice was not considered good by the writer of the letter.

Before our train left last night we drove past the new city hall in Kansas City, a simple, dignified structure. We then drove up near the memorial, from the top of which a burning fire always sends forth light and smoke. This memorial impresses me as striking and beautiful and must have a certain influence on people who see it daily.

We changed trains this morning in Chicago and are no our way to Cleveland, Ohio.

STOCK OPINIONS.
COURTS & CQ.—We look for a continuation of a trading market until more definite information is at hand as to what steps congress may take to help the business situation.

BEER & CO.—The market now seems to be in a position to stage another to be in a position to stage another rally, at least to the upper limits of the trading zone established by the first the trading zone established by the HISH weeks' action.
THOMSON & McKINNON—Naturally, there is bound to be considerable uncertainty this early in the congressional session as to just what will be done at Washington to aid in restoring business morale, and to increase general economic activity. But, the growing conviction that positive steps are going to be taken along such lines in due course should be a bolstering influence to the stock market.

should be a busitering stock market.

FENNER & BEANE—Although business news is likely to maintain a confused aspect from Tuesday's performance suggests that the market is again at a level from which a rally of primarily technical character could be experienced.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Market continues to give evidence of a trading affair with sentiment quickly responsive to day-to-day developments. COTTON OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—We continue to favor an accumulative program for the long pull.

BEER & CO.—We continue to favor BEER & CO.—We continue to favor purchases on recessions.

THOMSON & McKINNON—The market will most likely continue to be almost wholly controlled by developments in Washington until such time as some clear indication is given to the direction the new farm legislation will take. FENNER & BEANE—Sentiment is mixed, but we believe buying on dips will prove the best trading policy.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Trade appears to be awaiting action in Washington before making new commitments.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—We look for little change in values.

COURTS & CO.—It is our opinion that we will not get a sustained advance until there is marked improvement in until there is marked improvement in exports.

BEER & CO.—We consider the markets are more two sided now.

THOMSON & McKINNON—Until more details are known, a trading market is indicated and under current conditions we favor purchases on dips.

FENNER & BEANE—Outside trade slow and it will take bigger exports sales to give the market much momentum on buying side although Argentine developments may point the way to improvement in prices.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Grains are showing more resistance to pressure. ing more resistance to pressure.

COTTONSEED OIL OPINIONS.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—Trade was dull, awaiting further Washington development.

What Stocks Did.

Tues. 166 536 132 834 Total issues

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 .- (AP)-An unusually erratic stock market to-day jumped through a series of rallies and declines, and finished on a mild recovery move engineered by the major steels.

Early losses of 1 to more than 3 points were reduced or replaced mith moderate gains in many cases at the close, but at that numerous issues were sufficiently under water to pull the Associated Press average of 60 stocks down .4 of a point to 46.9. After a rapid slide at the start, dealings turned quiet and continued so throughout the remainder of the session. Transfers totalled 1,269,370 shares, compared with 1,450,210 yesterday. Last-minute support for the steel group was attributed to the belief new orders now coming into the plants may soon reverse the current downward slant in this industry. The sharp drop in this week's mill operations, however, kept shares in this category well on the downside the greater part of the session.

The further retreat of the list, as a whole, was in the face of a sizable flow of special and yearend dividends from corporations wishing to avoid the federal tax on undistributed profits.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.-(P)-The corporate bond market went limp today as prices ended fractions to around a point lower in quiet dealings, but federal loans advanced along a wide front.

The United States Governments ranged 9-32 of a point higher to 2-32 of a point lower.

Rail liens were under pressure although late buying tended to shrink losses.

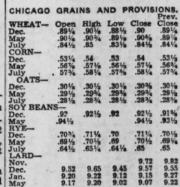

Despite increased flow of yearend dividends, most corporates faltered. The Associated Press average for 20 rails dropped .7 of a point to 74.1, while 10 utilities dipped .3 of a point to 98.2 and 10 industrials declined .2 of a point to 93.3. Foreign dollar loans were uneven. Brazilian issues moved a shade higher while other South American obligations pointed down. Japanese and Italian issues recorded fractional gains, while German loans were easier.

Turnover for all bonds totaled $7,243,275, face value, compared with $7,253,575 Monday.

TARZAN UNDER FIRE No. 27

Tarzan, in his cell, considered how he might prove himself innocent of kidnaping Yvonne d'Albert. He sent for Captain d'Albert and requested: "Dis-patch a courier to my country to bring back wit-nesses, who will show that I am really Tarzan, not do I know that these witnesses will not be members of your own criminal band" the officer snapped. The ape-man fixed him with a firm stare. "As a man of justice, Captain d'Albert, you will do as I ask."

The captain shrugged assent. But Tarzan's fateful plight was not relieved. Under the emotional stress which ruled the community, it was not likely that his witnesses could counteract the circumstantial evidence against him. In the end, he would be executed. . . .

. . . Far away in the jungle, the activities of Dick and Doc in Tarzan's behalf had small prospect of success. There, before their eyes, was Yvonne d'Albert, the kidnaped girl. But how were these two boys to save her from a host of twenty brutish, savage men?

Twenty - nine (P) — Investigators tonight at- years now we've been jotting paragraphs and stories which throw some sidelights on confernews story, seeking to give ac-curate and reliable reports of matters of news interest. The Constitution has been quite generous with the conference in permitting liberal space to conference news. Four years ago the late Clark Howell asked us how many years we had been writing this conference news. When we replied that we had been carrying on for 25 years, he said, "Well, I hope you live to make it a hundred." So we ride again. There is so much of interest to write about. Giddyap, Pegasus! Twenty-nine down, and 71 to go!

Menlo, Ga., and Wewoka, Okla. Why all this stampede among preachers wanting to go to Menlo, Ga., or Wewoka, Okla.? We learn that 13 preachers have asked to be sent to Menlo, and four have said they want to transfer to the legged chicken, and an Oklahoma woman has a four-legged rooster. Methodist preachers are noted for their fondness for chicken. They think the prospects are good for an abundance of chicken drum-sticks where there are four-legged fowls. So they are heading for Menlo, Ga., and Wewoka, Okla.

We know of three blushing newlyweds headed for conference, and there may be sev-eral more before it is over with. During the year the Rev. M. M. Brackman, of Aragon, and Miss Martha Emerson, of Macon, were married. Also the Rev. J. W. Brinsfield, of Rome-South Broad Street church, and Miss Mary Willis, of Summerville, were united in wedlock. And still another gansville, and Miss Cornelia Shell, who were joined in wedlock at Leopold received a glittering Griffin the last day of last year.

Amnesia Victim at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Spring Hill, with the Rev. Lee Baffles Internes, Mystifies Police

His questions stumped a filling station operator.
His ailment mystified Grady hospital attaches.

His identity baffled police.

And his thoughts gave him He is Atlanta's latest amnesia victim.

The young man, apparently about 25 years old, walked into a filling station at 539 Techwood drive last night and announced he wanted to "find out who I am." The filling station operator couldn't help him, so he called a Grady ambulance.
At the hospital, internes could find no sickness, so said they could do nothing for him. Policemen K. A. Wooster and H. M. Summerlin took him to police headquarters. There they found no identification marks, found no nothing to solve the mystery of "who I am."

Mr. "X" remembers nothing be-fore the time he walked into the filling station.
"I do my darndest to remember

—but it only brings a dull, throb-bing ache to the back of my head," Mr. "X" said as he sat at police headquarters. "Goodness knows Mr. "X" is 6 feet 1 inch ir height, blue-eyed, with good clothes, though they are slightly dirty. In his pockets was a small amount of change.

Police kept him at headquarters while they continued to seek his
